

our practice's policy for managing patient health information (or its principles and how full details can be obtained from the practice):

Privacy Statement

Aim

The leaflet aims to clearly explain how personal information is recorded and managed in the practice. Your doctor will be happy to discuss this with you.

Your Personal Health Information

Your doctor needs information about your past and present health in order to provide you with high quality care. This practice will make sure that you are able to discuss your health with your doctor in private. Information is called 'personal health information' if it concerns your health, medical history or past or future medical care and if someone reading it would be able to identify you. This practice follows the guidelines of the 'Handbook for the Management of Health Information in Private Medical Practice'. The handbook was produced by the Royal Australian College of General Practitioners. The handbook incorporates the provisions of Federal and State Privacy Legislation. This means that your personal information is kept private and secure.

Your Medical Records

Your doctor will do his/her best to make sure that your medical records:

- Are accurate, comprehensive, well organised and legible
- Are up to date
- Have enough information for another doctor to care for you
- Do not contain offensive or irrelevant comments about you
- Contain a summary of your care
- Can be used to remind you, with your permission, to return for follow up, check-ups and reviews.

Your doctor will only collect information which is relevant to your medical care. If you are uncertain as to why information is being requested, ask your doctor. If you want access to health care and maintain your anonymity, ask your doctor.

Providing your information to other doctors

The doctor(s) in this practice respect your right to decide how your personal health information is used or disclosed (for example to other doctors). In all but exceptional circumstances, personal information that identifies you will be sent to other people with your consent. Gaining your consent is the guiding principle. In this practice, it is customary for all doctors to have access to all the medical records. If you have any concerns about other doctors at this practice being able to see your records, discuss your concerns with your doctor. It is important that other people involved in your care, such as other doctors or health professionals, are informed of relevant parts of your medical history so they can best care for you. Your doctor will let you know before this occurs. If you have any concerns about this, discuss them with your doctor.

Providing your information to others

Your doctor will not disclose your personal health information to a third party unless:

Reviewed and updated by Mohamed Al-Zaini – 01/06/2025

Core Standard 1 - Criterion C1.1 – Information about your practice

- You have consented to the disclosure
- This disclosure is necessary because you are at risk of harm without treatment and you are unable to give consent. For example, you might be unconscious after an accident
- Your doctor is legally obliged to disclose the information (e.g. Notification of certain infectious diseases or suspected child abuse or a subpoena or court order)
- The information is necessary to obtain Medicare payments or other health insurance rebates
- There is an overriding public health and safety interest in the release of the information.

There are times when disclosure is necessary for the doctors in the practice to carry out a review of their practice for the purpose of improving the quality of care provided and the activity has been approved under Commonwealth or State legislation. This provides safeguards to protect the confidentiality of the information provided. In any of the above cases, only information that is necessary to achieve the objective will be provided.

Using health information for quality improvement and research

We use patient health information to assist in improving the quality of care we give to all our patients by reviewing the treatments used in the practice. We may also use information that does not identify you in research projects to improve health care in the community. You will normally be informed if your information is to be used for this purpose and will have the opportunity to refuse to have your unidentified information used in this way. Wherever practicable, the information used for research will not be in a form that would enable you to be identified. The publication of research results that use your information, will never be in a form that enables you to be identified. In some circumstances, where the research serves an important public interest, identifiable medical records can be used for medical research without your consent under guidelines issued by the National Health and Medical Research Council. An official ethics committee must approve this research.

Security of information in the practice

We will ensure that any of your personal or health information that is stored electronically, comply with the RACGP Standards. This will protect your record from unauthorised access. Your access to your health information

You have access to the information contained in your medical record. You may ask your doctor about any aspect of your health care including information in your record. We believe that sharing information is important for good communication between you and your doctor and for good health care. Information in your record can be provided to you by way of an accurate and up-to-date summary of your care, for instance if you are moving away and are transferring to a new doctor. Do not hesitate to ask your doctor if you want a summary of your care for any reason. If you request a summary or direct access to your full medical report, your doctor will need to consider the risk of any physical or mental harm to your or any other person which may result from disclosure of your health information and may need to remove any information that may impact on the privacy of other individuals. Your doctor will be pleased to provide a full explanation of the health summary or medical record provided. Depending on what is involved, you may be asked to contribute to the cost of providing the information.

Resolving your concerns regarding the privacy of your health information

If you have any concerns regarding the privacy of your health information or regarding the accuracy of the information held by the practice, you should discuss these with your doctor. Inaccurate information will be corrected, or your concerns noted in the records. For legal reasons, the original notes will be retained.

Further information on Privacy Legislation is available from:

Commissioner for Privacy and Data Protection Victoria – tel: 1300 666 444

Office of Federal Privacy Commissioner – tel: 1300 363 992

Office of the Health Services Commissioner (Victoria) – tel: 1800 136 066